

Successful Presentation for Emiliana at PROWEIN

35,000 visitors flocked to this year's ProWein trade show in Düsseldorf, Germany to see what the more than 300 exhibitors from 50 countries had to offer. Emiliana was among them and was a complete success.

Emiliana presented its lines of organic and biodynamic wines, which stood out from the rest for their premium quality and image. Other representatives included Argentina, California, New Zealand, France, Portugal, and others.

Emiliana also participated in the "Down to Earth" seminar, along with other New World wineries, and presented on the company's "triple bottom line" of sustainability: environment, social responsibility, and economic viability. Paul Dolan, a world leader in the production of organic and biodynamic wines, publicly congratulated the winery for its leadership in Latin America and asked the audience to join him in a second round of applause.

Yet once again Emiliana has proposed to deliver the value of what is pure and natural to consumers who demand noble wines that are not only top quality, but that respect the environment as well.
